METROROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS-By Henry Ware, Optician, September 17: O'cieck.

Adams's Express Company.—Adams's Express Company jesterday very kindly fur-nished us with late Eastern, Louisville and Nashville papers, all in advance of the mail, for which they have our thanks. Salz of Sears in Tainity Church.—The sale of pews in Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church took place last evening. Seven were sold at $600 each, which was the highest price paid, while others were sold as low as $75. The entire amount realized from the sale was $26,680. BURGLARY IN VINE-STREET.—The clothing establishment of J. Buff, at No. 128 Vine-street, was feloniously entered last night about cleven o'clock and robbed of a quanclive of clock and robbed of a quantity of goods, consisting of cloths, cassimeres and vestings. The barglars effected an entrance by climbing upon the roof of the house and descending through a sky-light, through which, also, they made their exit. ARREST OF AN ALLEGED BURGLAR .-- A ARREST OF AN ALLEGED BURGLAR.—A month or two ago, as most of our readers will remember, the gold-pen manufacturing establishment of G. W. Sheppard & Co., No. 6 West Fourth-street, was feloniously entered and robbed of a number of valuable articles. Day before yesterday a man named Michael Ostler was arrested upon charge of the burglary, and arraigned before Judge Lowe and committed in default of bail in the sum of $1,000 to await an examination. the sum of $1,000 to await an examination, which will take place to-morrow.

FAIR OF THE ORIO MECHANICS' INSTITUTE The eighteenth annual exhibition of the Ohio Mechanics' Institute opened for the week, yesterday morning, with a large attendance. Each department is attractive in its way, and deserves special attention, although our space at present forbids it.

The Mechanical Department contains a number of novelties to arrest the eye of the machinist, and others that would amply re-pay an examination by builders and archi-

In the Art Department, there is a bust in marble, by Bullet—the only one on exhibition—which of itself is worthy a visit. It is evidently taken from life, and is the head of a girl whose hair combed back, a la Pompadour, reveals a Grecian brow admirably-thanad and whose placid. shaped, and whose placid features suggest a nature pure as the Parian from which it is nature pure as the Parian from which it is cut.

The lips are faulty, although, doubtless, faithful; therefore this is no error of the artist; the ear is quite delicately shaped and natural; the neck and head finely executed and gracefully set upon the shoulders. The entire work, notwithstanding a flaw or two in the marble which could not have been foreseen, is exceedingly elever, and will add to the already extended reputation of the sculptor.

The miscellaneous exhibition in the main hall of the Catholic Institute attracts great numbers, and the display embracing a large variety, is quite creditable. The fair is open both day and evening, and will continue for some weeks, closing with a grand ball.

The Proposed Railway Connection with the South-The Adjourned Meeting Last Evening.

An adjourned meeting was held last evening at the Merchants' Exchange for the purpose of considering the proposed direct railway connection with the South. The attendance was very large and the interest in the project seemed very decided.

Mayor Bishop occupied the chair, and after calling the meeting to order stated the object for which it had been called. He stated that at a previous meeting a series of Evening.

stated that at a previous meeting a series of resolutions had been offered and laid upon the table for further consideration, where upon Joseph Torrence moved that they be taken up and read, which was carried; after which the Secretary read the following:

which the Secretary read the following:

Wheneas, The trade of Cincinnati with the cities of the South has been growing steadily from year to year, until it has now assumed a vast importance, and has outstripped the facilities of transportation afforded by means of either the rivers or already-constructed lines of radicade and was supported in the merchants of the South in the detentions that have occurred during the prevent season from the merchants of the South in the detentions that have occurred during the prevent season from the inability to ship property to Southern cities. It was compelling Southern merchants to seek other markets where they can supply their immediate and pressing wants—diverting from us a trade which we might ac defould enjoy, and compelling those merchants to pay higher prices than have prevailed in Cincinnati, therefore.

Resolved, That we, the citinens of Cincinnati, Covigton and Newport, do hereby express it as our firm conviction that the commercial interests of Cincinnati Imperaively demand a direct connection by saliroad with the net-work of Southern railreads. That, while unable to decide, at present, from the facts and statistics before us, on the merits of the several proposed routes, and that should be carefully and caucinny on each one that should be carefully and caucinny considered we would recommend the appointment of a committee, to whom this malter should be referred, to prepare a report upon the subject, as the best means to obtain the object in view.

Resolved, That the Mayor appoint, at his losure, a committee of five to obtain information and statistics upon the proposed routes, and that said committee report to an adjourned meeting, to be realled upon netice by His Honey, Mayor Biolog.

Recolved, That the thanks of this meeting be tendered to the gentlemen from Nashville, Knox-ville and Morristown, for the information they have imagneted to us, and we believe that Cincinnati with not be backward in lending her hands toward carrying out the objects of this meeting.

ward enrying out the objects of this moeting.

William M. Cerry then arose and offered a substitute in favor of the Knoxville route, and of the transfer by the city of all railway property to a Board of Trustees, to be applied to the completion of the road.

He then addressed the meeting at great length in favor of his proposition, which was listened to until the audience grew weary, when Mr. Keck arose to a point of order, which was sustained by the Chair. Mr. Corry appealed and the Chair was sustained, when the question occurred on Mr. Corry's substitute, which was rejected.

After addresses by Benj. Eggleston, and others, in favor of the above resolutions, they were adopted, and the meeting adjourned.

The rain on Sunday was a most fortunate occurrence for those wishing to attend the F. r. The dust had become excessively annoying, and no doubt deterred many from visiting the grounds. Yesterday, however, they were in excellent condition, and the

they were in excellent condition, and the result was a largely-increased attendance over that of Sa urday.

No cattle were exhibited yesterday, but to-day the imported and native Durhams will be shown in the ring. No other class of blooded cattle is so well represented as this—some of the finest herds in Kentucky and Ohio being represented. The competition will be animated and it is very doubtful whether the blue-grass region of the former, or the central portions of the latter, will bear away the prize. On Wednesday will bear away the prize. On Wednesday the Devons will be brought out for exhibi-tion, likewise herds of fat cattle, and herds of cows and heifers. All the animals en-tered are of the first-class, and demonstrate what can be done to improve the breed of cattle in this country.

No wagon-horses or teams were exhibited, an omission not altogether creditable to our farmers, who should use their utmost endeavors to improve this class of domestic animals—of far more value than racers. Among the blooded mares, brought into the ring, was the world-renowned "Fashion, now twenty-three years of age, and apparently as nimble as when six; of course, the ently as nimble as when six; of course, the first premium, $500, was given to her. One thorough bred yearling was entered, but was adjudged unworthy, and ruled out of the ring. Thos. H. Clay, of Lexington, Ky, exhibited two excellent colts, one of which, the "Estele," received a premium; but, according to the rules, although the other was altogether worthy, no award was made.

The Pomological Department was opened yesterday with a fine display of fruit, embracing specimens not only from the orchards in the vicinity of Cincinnati, but from those of Rochester, and other places in the East. New arrivals are constantly reaching the grounds, and by twelve o'clock to-day, the collection will be complete.

In view of the importance of the porkpacking interest in the West, Mr. A. Guild, of Cincinnati, has offered a premium of $50 for the best machine to cut and dress staves for barrels, &c. Such a machine, if one could

'The display of flowers will be good—the principal competition being between Mr. Cook, of Walnut Hills, and Mr. Heaver, both of whom have used their best endeavors to excel.

BARRINGER'S IMPROVED TIRE-SHRINKER. Among the machinery, we noticed a very useful invention, and one much needed, and which should be in the shop of every black-smith—and that is a perfect instrument for shrinking tire, and upsetting iron. It requires little heat, and is easily adjusted to quires little heat, and is easily adjusted to the curve of any sized wheel, from that of a hand-cart to a large log wagon, and does its work without kinking the iron, which no other machine ever has done. It likewise punches the tire, with great ease and accuracy, thereby dispensing entirely with the slow process of drilling. It occupies but a small space, and only costs about $20. John K. Mallonee has the county rights of all the North-western States, which he will dispose of on advantageous terms.

dispose of on advantageous terms. DANIELS'S SODA FOUNTAIN. This is an arrangement by which the sticky and fly-attracting bottles of syrups are dispensed with. The syrups are placed in cans in the cellar, and forced up by atmosin cans in the celiar, and forced up by atmospheric pressure, passing through the same cooling process as the soda-water, soda and all kinds of syrup are delivered through the same faucet, which is an invention of Mr. Daniels. This enables the attendant to deliver the soda more than twice as fast as in the ordinary way, besides delivering it several degrees cooler. The apparatus is worthy the attention of manufacturers of this beverage. Mr. Daniels has two of these fountains in operation on the Fair-grounds. In addition to the merits of the apparatus, his syrups, made from the fruit without heating, thus retaining the natural flavor, give to his soda-water a rare excellence. PAINTINGS-WARRING-MACRINE. S. A. Bailey, patentee and manufacturer, New London, Cona., presents an invention which promises to do away with a great share of the labors and discomforts of that terror to housekeepers—a washing day. Multitudinous as have been the devices for reducing the work of washing, we do not Multitudinous as have been the devices for reducing the work of washing, we do not remember to have seen one which looks so simple, and promises to be so effectual. The machine is formed of two spring-rolls, covered with India-rubber, and so constructed as to run together, and to turn fast and easy. By this means it is able to adjust itself to suit the size of any article, from a pockethandkerchief to a bed-quilt. It is used alternately for washing and ironing the ternately for washing and ironing, the clothes being first passed through to remove the dirt, and afterward to remove the water, both of which it is said to do in an effectual manner, without that injury to the texture which arises from the old process of rubbing and wringing. FRENCH'S CONICAL WASHING-MACHINE. Of all the inventions to abridge female labor, washing-machines have, certainly, done the most to accomplish the end desired; but many of the inventions claiming to assist in rendering washing easy are entirely usoless, and the purchasers, finding them-selves cheated, resort to the old system and ever afterward reject all machines of real

One of the best, and one which will bear any degree of scrutiny, is French's Conical Washing-machine—a simple, cheap and convenient article, and indispensible to every family. It is so simple and easy in operation that any body can use it with either one or both hands, and can be used in any part of the house, being so admirably constructed that it makes no slops. It can also be put in ranges of stationary washtubs, and connected with the supply and waste-pipes, without being exposed to view.

By all the ordinary methods of cleansing fine fabrics, such as laces, &c., the greatest care is required; while, with this machine. venient article, and indispensible to every care is required; while, with this machine the most delicate materials can be washed without the possibility of being damaged—a most conclusive recommendation to all those housekeepers who know the difficulty of getting clothes washed without tearing.

The washing of an ordinary family can be

The washing of an ordinary family can be done before breakfast, without the necessity of soaking. Again, with this machine, six or eight shirts, collars and pocket handkerchiets, may be washed in the incredibly short space of time—six minutes—much cleaner than if washed by hand. The machine, while in motion, folds and unfolds the clothes, exposing, alternately, one side and the other to the action of the water, while the hot suds are forced through them at the other to the action of the water, while the hot suds are forced through them at every turn of the machine. It possesses other advantages, too numerous to detail, but which place it beyond comparison with any other invention for the purpose. The price is only $10. For particulars address Box 2,803, Postoffice, New York.

BEYNOLDS'S ROTARY PUMP. Just north of Power Hall, on a frame of huge timbers built over a large clatern, stands a large cast-iron object, the use of which would puzzle almost any one, who had not seen it in operation, to determine. It looks as much as any thing like a big goose, stripped of its feathers, with its two legs extending down into the water supporting a little round body, while its long, crocked neck, from which the head has been cut off, bends gracefully over toward the spectators. This machine is a pump, and not only a pump, but it seems to us a very excellent one—simple, durable and effective. It consists solely of two hollow iron screws, running inside of this round body, which sucks up the water through the two legs and disabarge it through the neck. It has no gearing, valves or pistons, works with very little friction, and seems to be a very durable and efficient apparatus for draining and wrecking purposes. It is made by Stedman & Co., of Aurora, Ind., to whom orders should be addressed.

THE WEST & WILSON SEWING-MACHINE. When we spoke of this machine, a day or two since, we had not had an opportunity of examining it carefully, and therefore we merely mentioned the claims of its agent. Since then we have seen the machine thoroughly tested, and it seems to us to con-tain some excellent points. In the first thoroughly tested, and it seems to us to contain some excellent points. In the first place, it is the simplest machine in its construction which we ever saw. The needle and needle-bar are both straight, and the motion direct, giving great force to the thrust of the needle, and anabling it to operate on the thickest or thinnest fabric with equal ease. It sews from the original spools without rewinding, and forms a very neat, elastic and durable stitch, adapted to almost every kind of family sewing, and which will not rip, even if either thread should break; and last but not least, it costs only $30, thus placing it within the reach of every one. Go and see it.

PORTABLE BAW-MILLS. Few classes of machinery have evinced the benefit of the application of mechanical ingenuity to their improvement, more marked within the last few years, than portable sawnills. Indeed, but a few years ago, the very idea that a saw-mill could be so constructed that it could be transported from point to point a circumstances might require was point, as circumstances might require, was scouted with derision. It was declared to be impossible that a mill not mounted on a permanent foundation could cut lumber with any degree of success; but such has been the ingenuity and labor bestowed on this class of machines, that portable mills and engines are now not merely fully equal in all essential respects to stationary ones, but frequently a great deal superior. As an illustration of this we give a short description of the Blandy Saw-mill and Engine, now on exhibition at the fair.

The boiler is about eleven feet in length, with a large fire-box adapted to burning either wood or coal, and containing some fifty flues, thus giving a great amount of fire surface. The engine is mounted upon the boiler, but is secured, not directly to the boiler itself, but to a large hollow cylinder foot itself, but to a large hollow cylinder of cast-iron, extending its whole length, and which is thus made to serve the double purpose of a bed-plate for the engine and a heater for the water which is fed to the boiler. By this arrangement the manufacturers claim that the alternate expansion and construction of the boiler in heating and cooling is prevented from twisting the different parts of the engine out of line, as is liable to happen when the engine is fastened directly to the boiler. The engine is supplied with steam gauge, governor, whistle, and all the appliances of a first-class en-

The mill is furnished with two saws, arranged one above the other, the upper one so fixed that it may be moved up or down so hard that it may be moved up or down as occasion may require, and running in an adjustable sluice, by which the head of the saw can be altered to suit the quality of the lumber. The head blocks of the mill may be moved independently or simultaneously, as may be desired, and are operated by the sawyer on the side nearest the engine, so that he is able to control both mill and en-

The whole arrangement is very simple and effective, and in the highest degree portable. It has been extensively tried in farious parts of the country, and we believe has given great satisfaction.

PORTABLE ENGINE One of the prettiest things which we have seen on the ground is the small portable engine, exhibited by Dumont & Sinker, of Indianapolis, and designed for farm use. It stands near the west-end of Power Hall, and stands near the west-end of Power Hall, and is now used for driving a thrashing-machine, which it seems to do most effectively. There is no doubt but that a large part of the labor of a farm can be much more economically performed by the aid of steam power than in any other way, and the two chief obstacles to its use, hitherto, have been the cost of suitable steam-engines, and their liability to get out of order necessitating the constant per out of order necessitating the constant get out of order, necessitating the constant employment of a skilled mechanic to keep one in order, or the frequent sending it to a shop for repairs. The manufacturers of this engine seem to have been aware of these two objections, and have shown considerable skill in obviating them. They have produced a light, neat, simple, and yet very perfect engine, compact, durable, and in the highest degree portable, little liable to get out of order, and in every way highly suitable for farm use. We advise all intending to purchase a small engine to look at this one.

ARREST OF ANOTHER COUNTERFRITER.—A man named Lawrence Harriot, was arrested by Officer Williams day before yesterday, on York-street, between Linn and Baymiller, on suspicion of having in his possession counterfeit money. He fought desperately when arrested, but was overpowered by the officer and taken to the Station-house. Upon march three counterfeit five dollar hills on search, three counterfeit five dollar bills, on the Pittsfield Bank, of Illinois, were found in his possession, and as this seemed to con-firm the suspicion that he was a regular dealer, he was taken before the Police Court and committed to jail in default of surety in the sum of $1,500 to await an examination next Thursday.

THE HAMILTON SAW-MILL.-In our Fair report yesterday we mentioned the Hamilton Saw-mill, intending to call attention to two important features of its construction, which we have observed in no other mill, and which seem to us to merit the attention of all who are interested in such articles. These are a very simple arrangement, by which the saw is drawn back from the log while gigging back, thus enabling the saw to cool, and preventing it from scratching the lum-ber, as most mills are liable to do—and a plan by which the sawyer isable to alter the lead of his saw, even while cutting, without stopping the mill, to suit it to the inequalities of the lumber.

Something New.—The sewing-machine patented by the Grover & Baker Sewing Machine Company is really the most astonishing thing of its kind which has ever come under our notice. But Mr. Grover, the ingenious inventor, has recently, it would seem, greatly improved his invention. He has brought out a machine which is the wonder and admiration of the world. It is very simple, not liable to get out of order, does its work better and faster than its predecessors. The "Great Western" Depot of the Company is 58 West Fourth-street, Cincinnati.

GATTERS .- Something attractive, in the GATERIS.—Something attractive, in the shape of cloth-galters for gentlemen, have just been received by J. H. Deters, Fourth-street, west of Walnut. They are neatly made and fit the ankle closely. To those who wear shoes at this season, we commend them as being comfortable and pleasant.

Corasorion.—The Burnet House is not full, as has been reported from the com-mencement of the National Fair. They have a sufficient number of ladies and gen-tlemen's large rooms to accommodate, with regular beds, at least one-third more than they have had during the fair. AMUSEMENTS.

NATIONAL TREATER. - A large audience attended this theater last evening, to witness Mr. J. B. Roberts's personation of "Glover," in Richard III, one of his best parts, and in which he has ob-tained no little praise in other cities. This evening Mr. Roberts appears as "Othello," in Shakspeare tragedy.

PIKE'S OPERA-HOUSE.—The fact that Ion, the most classic play of the modern drams, always draws a large audience here, when well sast, is no small compliment to the taste and culture of our citizens.

Last evening was no exception—the wast Opera-house was filled, and the tragedy, we understand, passed of very creditably. Sasan Denin dressed the Argive youth peculiarly, not to say theoryeuty; leaving little room to doubt the sex of the fair artiste. We saw little of the play, but some scenwere very well done; though Iea's part was no altogether what it should have been. This evening, Knowles's play of The W(fe is presented, with an amusing after-piece.
